FIRST DOUBLE PHD DEGREE AT UKLO

“St Kliment Ohridski” University - Bitola, in cooperation with Ghent University from Belgium organized public defense of the double doctoral degree by Ms Renata Petrevska Nechkoska, MA, assistant at the Faculty of Economics - Prilep. At this solemn act, Ms Petrevska Nechkoska defended her dissertation titled Sense-and-Respond Framework enrichment for tactical management by application of ICT in front of a Defense Committee composed of domestic and foreign academic staff members.

The scientific and research challenge of Dr Renata Petrevska Nechkoska can be found in the issue of tactical management and its adaptability in conditions of unpredictability, both in the managerial sense in general and in information systems management.

Dr Petrevska Nechkoska, in close collaboration with her mentors - professors of both universities, UKLO and UGhent, as well as networking with other experts and building upon the managerial Sense-and-Respond introduced by Mr. Stephan Haeckel, former CEO for strategic studies and innovations of IBM (USA), presents the DENICA method that enables the tactical manager to be more adaptable in the process of effective realization of goals. This method has been designed through a number of iterations involving real business managers of 4 companies (2 located in the Republic of Macedonia and 2 in Belgium) and implemented and upgraded in other companies throughout West Europe. The practical experience of this candidate, inseparably combined with the scientific-research activities she carried out at a top ranked, world class University, as well as her multi-faceted interests and highly pronounced professionalism, resulted in a successful round-up of this special process of issuing a double PhD. On the other hand, the very defense in front of an international Committee amalgamates doctoral studies, scientific disciplines as well as researchers and improves the cooperation between the universities and the countries.

UKLO has to be particularly proud in this sense, as this double degree resulted from the 6-month mobility period of the PhD candidate within the frames of an ERASMUS MUNDUS BASILEUS project. UKLO was a member of this Project consortium over the whole duration, from 2008 until 2017.

The defense of this cotutelle degree took place at the Faculty of Economics in Prilep, on October 26, 2017, as a unique event that caught the eye of the academic, but also of the wider public as well.

INTERNAL UNIVERSITY CONFERENCE: SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH AT UKLO – EXPERIENCES AND PERSPECTIVES

On September 29-30, 2017, a two-day Conference on the topic of Scientific Research at UKLO – experiences and perspectives, was held in the picturesque mountainous town Krushevo, with participants of the academic community of “St Kliment Ohridski” University – Bitola.

This initiative, Internal University Conference, designed and developed by the managing team of the University, is related to organizing and holding bi-annual events (conferences) dedicated to significant and up-to-date topics that can tackle various areas of University activity and academic living.

In a situation with higher education facing numerous challenges, the universities are trying to revise and redefine their position in society and work on emphasizing the need to jointly share interests, priorities, good practices, and what is more, the need to improve personal knowledge and competences, to become exquisitely important in a world of constant changes.

An event like this, which brings together the academic community of UKLO, is actually a kind of a platform for potential participants to exchange experience, to improve the scientific research and the papers they write, to upgrade the existing and to gain new knowledge, to write successful project proposals. The main objective of the Conference is to increase, qualitatively and quantitatively, the project activity of the University as a whole and to motivate the academic staff to take up scientific-research activities, to publish papers in international scientific journals, participate in international conferences and projects. The Conference is also perceived as a solid basis for cooperating for the purpose of increasing the skills and competences of staff, leading to an increased degree of integration of the University in general.
